ing of dry goods and other personal effects bought in the US by Filipino/American citizens for their relatives and friends in the Philippines. True to its bayanihan spirit, MFC's goal is to share acquired products from the US to make living in the Philippines more comfortable, and thus, working in the US more rewarding and satisfying, as well. MFC has a patented trademark and have more than 20,000 customers who avail of MFC services.

Now leading this second-generation ocean freight forwarding company is the daughter, Maria C.J. Castro, who extended MFC services globally. MFC arranges the shipment of household goods by picking, packing, and delivering from the US to anywhere in the world. And though many things have changed, MFC remains committed to the bayanihan spirit, which has now evolved to embrace the international communities.
